Shark fishing banned in Egypt

The Red Sea environment is precious to all who enjoy the variety of marine life and corals, and its future looks good thanks to the efforts of governors, HEPCA (Hurghada Environmental & Protection Conservation Association) and the Red Sea and South Sinai Association.

As a founder member of HEPCA, Emperor Divers has been active in ensuring that the marine life and corals of the Red Sea continue to be protected. A recent campaign led by HEPCA and supported by the Red Sea Governate, The National Parks of Egypt and the Ministry of Agriculture & Fisheries, resulted in the banning of shark fishing in the whole of the Egyptian Red Sea with Egypt named as the Shark Guardian of the Year 2006.
